

December 1, 2007

Hello Students,

The English Regents is only six weeks away and now is the time to prepare for this important exam with hard work and determination! January 22nd is closer than you. The good news is that you have time to get ready. It is up to you. The more tasks you do and the more essays you write will boost your performance and your self confidence,

This student guide was written to help you understand the different parts of the exam. When you read this guide you will receive tips on how to get better prepared for this important examination. A calendar format is used so that you can organize the work you must do before you take this test in January.

Pay close attention to the tips. These tips on being successful come from students who took the exam and passed it with flying colors. ELA Prep teachers have also given strategies that have worked with their students.

The secret to doing well is to write every day and conference with your English teacher about your essays. Visualize success and aim for it. You can do it!

The first place to start is to actively participate in class every day and to attend prep classes for individual attention. Start today.

Drop by room 217 and I will gladly go over your essays and answer any questions you might have regarding the English Regents.

Best wishes,

Denise Ribeiro
English Specialist

